

The Wire China

The Wire is a digital news magazine dedicated to understanding and explaining one of the biggest stories of our time: China's economic rise, and its influence on global business, finance, trade, labour and the environment.

The weekly publication — founded by David Barboza, who earned two Pulitzer Prizes while serving as the Shanghai correspondent for The New York Times — relies on a diverse group of editors, writers and columnists stationed around the globe.

Many of them have years of experience covering China and its evolving relationship with the rest of the world. In 2021, two feature stories from The Wire were named finalists for the prestigious SOPA awards organized by the Society of Publishers in Asia. In 2023, Katrina Northrop won the SOPA Award for Young Journalists for a “standout and impactful body of investigative work on China's economic influence.”

Our mission is to provide accurate, balanced, and thoughtful reporting, in the pursuit of truth, “without fear or favor.” We are also dedicated to bringing you diverse viewpoints and ideas, with our columns, book recommendations and Q&A interviews. In doing so, we hope to demonstrate that we are worthy of your time and interest.

The Leading China Business Intelligence Platform

WireScreen delivers unparalleled global business intelligence to corporations and government agencies, furnishing them with detailed, accurate and actionable data on millions of companies and the people who run them.

Mitigate Risk

Multinational companies face a myriad of challenges in doing business globally, including compliance with sanctions and export controls and navigating the Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act. Our cutting-edge platform swiftly identifies risks across your suppliers, customers, partners, and investments, ensuring that you stay ahead in the game.

Our Mapping Technology

We have built a sophisticated software platform that is mapping business relationships throughout the world. Beginning with China, we are documenting who owns and ultimately controls a company or financial institution. We also provide insights into a company's affiliates and joint venture partners. Using our platform, customers can search more than 10 million company profiles to gain insights into the operations of global brands and the portfolios of some of the world's biggest investment firms.
